DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This fine two story house stands on the east side of the old Jonesville Rd. The house is now abandoned and the site is grown in trees, vines, and briars so a thorough investigation of the site was not possible. Further details may be gained from oral interviews with Betty Genus, now 92 years old, who had this house built soon after her marriage to Horace Genus, the owner of the property at that time. Those details will be added to this survey.

Though the yard is overgrown today, there remains large Yucca plants, fruit trees, and other shrubs that indicate that the yard was planted with flowering plants and trees and would have been a lovely home place during its occupancy by the Genus family. The facade has the typical three bays in length, and one bay in depth. The front door was sheltered by a small shed porch with banisters between the posts. The frame was originally covered with weatherboards, but was covered more recently by tarpaper siding, known locally as "felt" siding. The interior contained two rooms down and two up. Probably there was a central stairway dividing the two rooms, as was typical. Along each gable end, stove flues ascended. The cornices were boxed, and there was a cross gable pediment.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This was once the lovely home of a Black landowning family, one with a rich history, especially an oral history provided by Betty Genus. It is intended that she be interviewed and notes from that interview will be added to this survey.

The property was purchased by James F. Davis and Mary Davis in 1893 from James Hardy (of as yet unknown identity). There was no "being clause" in the deed, and no James Hardy was listed in the grantee index so research halted, to be resumed later, if possible. (deed JA 40/262). In 1911, Horace J. Genus acquired the property from his mother Mary (Davis) Genus (deed 218/170) and had this house built soon thereafter according to his wife, Betty Genus.

Her parents were from Point of Rocks. (Betty Genus's)

As part of this survey, the photographs of Horace Genus were copied, and Betty Genus was photographed too.

This house stands just off from the front of the home of Mary Davis, a small one room down, one room up frame house. Since Horace Genus was raised in that house, and this one is the second generation house for the Genus family and the Jonesville community.

Note: the negatives of the photographs of this house were given to a student from Montgomery College for printing, and he has not returned them nor the prints. He cannot be reached. The only photographs available are the smaller 3 x 5's which are included. The house has since been demolished.
